FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Junior League of Memphis Members Honored in MBJ's Super Women in Business

Memphis, Tenn. – Sept. 30, 2014 – It's a bird! It's a plane! It's Super Women! Two, actually. Two Junior League of Memphis members were recently named Super Women in Business by the Memphis Business Journal.

The Super Women in Business, now in its third year, recognizes 25 of the top businesswomen in Memphis and the Mid-South. Two Junior League members, Ann Langston and Sally Pace, were among those honored.

"Ann and Sally have done so much for our community and Junior League," said Carolyn Danley, President of the Junior League of Memphis. "This is a great honor for them, and we couldn't be more proud."

Langston, the chief strategic officer at the Church Health Center, is a past president of the Junior League of Memphis. She also served as sustainer member at large. She's been with the CHC since April 1999, and also served as the chair of its Board of Directors.

Pace, the senior vice president of Marketing & communications at FTN Financial, is also a past president of the Junior League of Memphis. She also served as the marketing and public relations chair, the fund development director, and is currently serving as a provisional advisor.

Langston, Pace and the 23 other nominees were celebrated at an event held Aug. 29 at the Hilton Memphis.

About the Junior League of Memphis

The Junior League of Memphis is an organization of women committed to promoting voluntarism, developing the potential of women, and improving communities through the effective action and leadership of trained volunteers. Its purpose is exclusively educational and charitable. As one of the largest volunteer groups in the Mid-South since 1922, the JLM is committed to improving the lives of women and children in the Memphis community. For more information, please visit
